The town also owe two hundred dollars for money left by the late Col. Fogg, for the support of Schools and the Ministry, 200,00

Which being added to the debt as above stated, will make the town debt $2646,43

The Selectmen have also exhibited a claim against Sarah Stevens, 106,44

Claim vs. County for Paupers, 140,00

Which the Selectmen think cannot be collected, which were last year reported as available funds of the town.

From the above statement it will appear that the Selectmen have reduced the debt $426,47

Exeter, April 22, 1848.

To the Selectmen of Epping,

Gentlemen,—You have proposed to me the question whether the town of Epping are liable for the repair of a certain Bridge, called Mill Bridge, in that town in view of the following facts, viz :—That the bridge was constructed by individual subscription about eighty years ago, and from that time to the present has been kept in repair by individuals and not by the public, that there is a saw mill on the Northerly side of the stream and also a fulling mill, at both of which much business is done; and that prior to the erection of the present saw mill there was another saw mill more northerly than the present, and which was probably erected about the same time that the bridge was built, and which was removed about the same time that the new mill was erected; that there are two dwelling houses on the same side of the stream and a number of landholders; and no way to approach their lands but by travelling across the Boston Bridge, 1-2 or 3-4 of a mile below—that the bridge in question leads directly from the main public road across the stream, and has been used by the public from the period of its first erection.

By the Revised Statutes, vol. 1, page 125, Sec. 7. No highway shall be deemed a public way unless the same has been used by the public for the term of twenty years; and no highway thrown open to the public, the use of which would not be necessary for the public shall ever be deemed a public highway.

The provisions of this section are new but it seems to me that they do not affect the liabilities of the town with regard to this bridge; for it was dedicated to the public, and was used by the public much more than half a century before the passage of the act.

In 2. N. H. Rep. 513. Woodbury Jus. says, "It is well settled that a bridge though not erected by the public, may still become a public charge in respect to its repairs. The true test seems to be, that the bridge, if dedicated to the public, if used by the public, and found to be of public utility, should not continue a burthen to the individuals who built it."

"Though the use and repair of it by the public, be under a protest against their liability, the liability is still fixed, if the bridge be not indicted as a nuisance and be used by the public so long and so much as to evince its usefulness to them."

The case to which I have referred, gives many authorities in support of the doctrine there laid down.

The public have made no objection against the bridge, nor indicted it as a nuisance, but have used it very long and a great deal.

In view of the case referred to, it is my belief that the town are liable for the repairs of the bridge.

I am with respect, your obed't serv't.

JNO. SULLIVAN.

By the 1st of Decr 1792 I do certify that I am now and have been ever since the building of said bridge a resident of New Haven in the State of Connecticut and that I have been a frequent user of said bridge and have never known any accident to happen to me or to any other person in passing over it. And that I do now certify that I have never known any accident to happen to me or to any other person in passing over it.
